Whirlpool dishwasher used parts

By Joshua Duvauchelle Buying home appliances can be a stressful process, especially with so many different brands and features to choose from. If you have narrowed down your decision to a Kenmore or Whirlpool dishwasher, here for some facts that might help you decide which is best for you. i "Dishwasher" is Copyrighted by Flickr user: kevindoolley (Kevin Dooley) under the Creative Commons Attribution license. Kenmore is only a store brand name. Kenmore appliances are not made by a Kenmore company, nor are they made by Sears. Sears contracts other brands, such as GE, Frigidaire, or Whirlpool, to build machines for them. Kenmore is nothing more than a name on the outside. For a long time the majority of Kenmore appliances were made by Whirlpool, and this is still true in many cases. That Kenmore dishwasher that you are comparing to Whirlpool might actually be the same machine. The quality of a Kenmore dishwasher can vary wildly, because it could be manufactured by any of the other major appliance brands. Some brands make better dishwashers than others, but with a Kenmore you don't know exactly what you are getting. Whirlpool dishwashers are reliable machines that can be easily repaired. Most problems require only a simple part replacement. When you look up parts for a Kenmore branded dishwasher, you often have to go through a Sears service of some type. The part numbers will actually be Whirlpool or GE or Frigidaire numbers. Also, the parts will come in the manufacturer's box, not a Kenmore box. Whirlpool dishwasher parts can be researched in a variety of locations. Certain aftermarket parts are easier to locate for a Whirlpool dishwasher than for a Kenmore-branded counterpart. Sometimes a service technician will be required to communicate with factory tech-help to solve a particularly difficult problem. On Kenmore-branded appliances, the service technician will have to be from Sears to get factory tech help. This greatly limits the availability of appropriate technicians. On Whirlpool-branded appliances, any service provider can get factory help directly from Whirlpool. Kenmore dishwashers are not stand-alone products. Due to the difficulty with parts and repairs, it is always advisable to go with a factory brand rather than a store brand. The possibility that a Kenmore and Whirlpool could actually be the same dishwasher only adds to Whirlpool's favor. Learn where to look first for what you need.Find the Numbers You'll NeedBefore calling, clicking or shopping anywhere for a replacement part for any appliance, you need a few numbers on hand. Dig out the warranty or user manual for help. Or, you'll have to poke around for numbers. Here's what you'll need: Appliance name Appliance model number Appliance part name and/or number You'll find model numbers of most refrigerators, ovens, dishwashers and microwaves on the inside of the door or on the inside door frame. Sometimes there's a plate or a foil label on the frame with this information, says AllAppliancePartsSarasota.com, an appliance store. An appliance model number may be quite long. Take a picture of the label so you'll have it in front of you when searching for a part.Check With the Manufacturer FirstIf your appliance is still under warranty, call the appliance manufacturer to tell them your problem. Be sure to find your warranty information either in print or online to have on hand. They may be able to help you diagnose the issue over the phone, or send you a free replacement part. Some appliance companies have direct online replacement part sites, such as this partial list according to ChoiceHomeWarranty.com: Whirlpool GE Maytag Amana Black and Decker Bosch LG These sites are helpful if you know your diagnosis and the exact part you need. The last thing you need is to guess at which part needs to be replaced, says ChoiceHomeWarranty.com.If you're looking for replacements from Canadian manufacturers, go to GuaranteedParts.com for Beaumark appliance parts. Contact Marcone.com, an authorized appliance parts distributor in Canada for major brands such as Whirlpool, Electrolux, GE, Maytag, Bosch, Samsung, LG and more.Other Online SitesIf you can't find what you need on the manufacturer's site or the part is prohibitively expensive directly from the company, check on other reputable sites for what you may need. A number of sites favored by DIYers include diagrams, manuals, how-to-guides and videos. To begin, head to PartSelect.com in the United States and PartSelect.ca in Canada.If you have an appliance repair person, it may pay to have a professional come in, diagnose the problem and the part, then order and install it on your own. It's a cost-efficient way to handle an appliance repair if you are comfortable fixing it yourself.What's an Authorized Dealer?When shopping for replacement parts online, make sure you buy from an authorized dealer only. An authorized dealer will have excellent customer service, knowledge of the products and return policies. If you aren't sure if the company or site is an authorized dealer, always contact the manufacturer and ask if they can identify whether or not they are a compliant authorized dealer source.Appliance Fault CodesToday's appliances are digital with display panels and flashing lights. If there's a fault code, write it down and look in the manual to diagnose the issue. The code could also be a hint as to what part needs replacing, says FamilyHandyman.com. Appliances that have control boards can be fixed with replacement control boards. If you're handy, it's doable on your own.
